Cynthia Contreras is an Orlando resident since 2006 who is originally from Guatemala. She achieved both her bachelors and master’s degrees from the University of Central Florida (UCF). She is also an Academic Advisor for undergraduate students at UCF. She is in her final year of the Conflict Analysis and Resolution Ph.D. program and her concentration is organizational conflict. Her focus is mainly on responses and approaches to dealing with workplace violence and bullying. In her spare time she enjoys spending time with her dog Tsuki. She also goes back to Guatemala to visit her family at least once a year. You can make contact with Cynthia at cc1971@nova.edu

Dr. Jorge Rice is, a 2015 alum of the DCRS program and has been a mentor for the past 3 years. Dr. Rice holds a master’s degree in public administration and has a Ph.D. in Conflict Analysis & Resolution from Nova Southeastern University, with approved certifications by the Florida Supreme Court in circuit civil & family mediation. He also possess additional certifications in residential foreclosure mediation training. (http://www.qmediation.com/about ), Email contact: jrice00281@gmail.com

Roselyn Onyegbula is a doctoral student in the department of Conflict Resolution Studies. Currently, she is the President of the Africa Working Group and also part of the recruitment team for admission into Nova Southeastern University’s graduate programs.

She holds a Master’s degree in Conflict Transformation from SIT Graduate Institute affiliated to World Learning in Brattleboro, Vermont and has extensive experience working on Peace building and Human Rights issues in her home country Nigeria and internationally. Roselyn can be contacted at ro227@nova.edu
Sidjae Price originally from Los Angeles California, and having additionally resided in Jamaica New York and now Florida, has been exposed to multiple academic environments and instances. In her opinion, the transition from one academic environment to the next could have been smoother if only she had a peer mentor to 'show her the ropes'. She has a strong desire to guide individuals along the right path based on her life experiences and thus her decision to become a peer mentor with DCRS.

Sidjae holds a Bachelors degree in Criminal Justice with a minor in Forensic Psychology and Entrepreneurship; and a Master's Degree in Criminal Justice with a specialization in Legal Perspective, all attained from NSU. She is currently a third year student in the Doctoral program of Conflict Analysis and Resolution. She has recently founded and incorporated a 501(c) 3 non-profit organization entitled Speak Loud Inc., with a mission that has been blended with the conflict resolution foundations learned from the program, and her criminal justice academic knowledge and work experience. She can be contacted at sidjae@nova.edu

Suzette Henry Campbell. As a Human Resources practitioner with particular interest in diversity and multiculturalism in the work-space, Suzette recognizes that the Conflict Resolution Studies program provides a good complement to her future goals. Her interest also includes social injustice and learning and development projects. She is now in the process of completing her course-work obligations with the anticipation of entering the dissertation phase of the program. Suzette can be reached at sh570@nova.edu

Yehuda Silverman - International Peace concentration

Since beginning the PhD program in 2013 as an on-campus student, he has accumulated many significant tips and strategies over the years that he has shared with new students along the way. As he is now nearing the final year of the PhD studies, he looks forward to continuing to help new graduate students as a supplemental GPS. He looks forward to assisting you and keeping in touch. Feel free to also call on him whenever you feel lost! Through passing on the knowledge that was once shared with him by his peer mentor, professors, and fellow cohorts, we are confident you will have a successful PhD journey. Yehuda can be contacted at ys232@nova.edu