

MOROCCO GLOBAL COURSE – SUMMER 2012

Peace Education and Peace Building CARM/D 6624

Map retrieved from <http://www.marocvasions.com/maps/>

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

This practicum is developed to engage students in experiential, applied learning of sustainable, multi-track peace building practices, theories and models. Topics covered will include various levels of peace building programs (government, civil society), social change, peace education and human rights. As part of the course students will travel Morocco for approximately fourteen days (including travel) where they will have the opportunity to interact with and learn from leading government and civil society peace builders in country. Such in-country partners will include government officials, such as from the Foreign Ministry and/or the Ministry of Education, US diplomats in country, and civil society organizations relevant to peace building and peace education in country.

GLOBAL COURSE GOALS AND COURSE OBJECTIVES

The goal of this Global course is to provide an overseas experience that will enhance student's skills in peace education and peace building internationally.

- Students will apply their theoretical knowledge of peace building models, theories and strategies by interacting with expert practitioners on the ground in various global locations.
- Students will be able to describe and critically assess, in group discussion and written analysis, what models, frames and techniques for peace building seem to be used (or might be used) in practice.
- Students will demonstrate cross-cultural communication skills in interaction with faculty, one another and host colleagues.
- Both independently and in interdisciplinary teams, students will analyze the complex social, political and economic dynamics relevant to peace and conflict in country.
- Students will reflect-in-action regarding their learning process via facilitated group de-briefing dialogues and reflective journals.
